HAWLEY'S DISCOVERY OF TREASONABLE WORDS IN A COMMITTEE REPORT.

Senator Brown uses the words "Invading Army," and the gentleman from Connecticut tries to get up a sensation—The oligomargarine bill—a tax on incomes—Notes.

SENATOR BROWN'S OVERSIGHT.

He Alludes to the Union Army as the "Invading Army."

WASHINGTON, June 7.—In the senate Mr. Miller moved the reference of the oligomargarine bill to the committee on agriculture.

Mr. Morrill said if the motion should not prevail, he would move to refer it to the committee on finance. It was to be considered as a revenue bill, the finance committee was the proper committee to consider it. Of course, if it was to be considered as a bill on agriculture, it would properly go to the committee on agriculture.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—[Special.]—Senator Joe Hawley, of Connecticut, is usually sensible, but sometimes he flies off the handle. He did today in a most amusing manner. Senator Brown had called up his bill to give a rebate of not more than twenty-five per cent to all railroads in the south which had purchased rolling stock from the government at the close of the war. This rolling stock had been improvised for army service, and was worth very little, but because the southern railroads could then get nothing else they took it at the prices fixed by the government authorities. Nearly all of the roads have been reimbursed twenty-five per cent on the amount paid, and Senator Brown's bill is to provide for a settlement with the others on a similar basis. Among the roads in Georgia it affects only the Rome and Southwestern, as the others have already had a settlement but in Tennessee and other southern states it will reimburse a large number of roads for unjust expenditures. When the bill came up before the committee on railroads it was opposed by a unanimous vote Senator Brown was authorized to prepare the report, giving the reason of the committee's action. He did so, and the report has been in print some weeks. Today, when the bill was sent to pass, Senator Hawley leaped to his feet as if he had just mashed a bumble bee. Holding a rattling and frightened report in his hand, he exclaimed in a fourth of July tone that he could not believe that was a report from the committee on railroads. He had discovered that in one place it stated that an invading army had gone into the south, and in another place the word "invaded" was used in relation to the movements of the federal forces. "I am sure," cried Hawley, "that no union soldier could sanction the use of those terms." Senator Brown suggested that he would supply a synonym more agreeable to the delicate nerves of the senator from Connecticut. "No," said Mr. Hawley, "I am done with it." This would seem to be enough to settle the bill, but it didn't. Senator Brown calmly stated that he had no desire to insert any offensive words in the report, and that he would be the last man in the senate to re-open any feeling of sectional strife. As he did not believe any committee the majority of whose members were republicans, would have consented to such a report, he withdrew his name from the bill. The bill was then referred to the committee on railroads and a vote was taken to withdraw it. To this general consent was accorded. Mr. Brown then called a vote on the bill and it was passed. He went to several members of the committee and agreed to substitute the word "covered" for "invaded" and to put "union army" for "invading army." This was authorized by the committee to have the report prepared and sent along to the house with the bill. Mr. Hawley's term is expiring, and, as this incident shows, he is in desperate straits.

MR. CRISP RETRACTS HARSH LANGUAGE.

That was a handsome thing and gracefully done when Judge Crisp arose in the house this morning and said he had been too hasty in his remarks to Mr. Holman last Saturday. MACON MOSAICS.

A NOTED CHARACTER PAYS THE WAGES OF WICKEDNESS.

Clark Chambliss Gets Ninety Days or Two Hundred and Twenty-five Dollars—George Hall Pays One Hundred Dollars for Slapping His Wife—Personal and General News.

MACON, Ga., June 7.—[Special.]—Some months ago a noted character appeared on the streets of Macon. He was a former resident, but had been north, around Washington city, and he had apparently done well. His dress was a handsome dude suit of costly goods, a fur-lined overcoat and natty patent leather boots with French heels. His woolly head was covered with a shiny beaver, very much on one side, and a nobby little cane and a silk umbrella completed the belongings of this singular apparition.

Carke was well known here, and dark deeds are laid at his door. He had not been here long before it began to be current gossip that he was at his former tricks again. At last, having obtained sufficient proof, officer Jeff Johnson went to his room to arrest him. Clarke was found in his lair, and he resisted arrest, fought like a wild cat, and raised such a tumult that assistance had to be procured to move the fellow to the barracks, where he was taken and locked up, barefooted and bareheaded.

To-day was trial day, and a dozen or more young men were summoned to appear as witnesses. Recorder Patterson conducted a rigid examination of the witness. Little by little a description of the tricks was given, and the court bore on the miserable culprit. At last he was asked if he had anything to say, and then came a burst of savage eloquence that would have done credit to some barbary orator of his own sunny Africa. He dwelt at considerable length on the many indignities to which he had been subjected, and in miming gestures and expressive language indicated his desire to make a laugh from the audience. He would up by saying that he had been in the north, had but lately come back to Macon, and he wished to the Lord he had never seen the old place any more.

After he got through, Recorder Patterson carefully reviewed the evidence, and narrated the statutes that bore on the case, and wound up by pronouncing the guilty party of the crime of a man. He sentenced him to a hundred dollars, or sixty days, in the first case, and twenty-five dollars or thirty days in the last. As he has no money, he will use a pickaxe for the next three months on the highways of Bibb county.

Beat His Wife.

MACON, June 7.—[Special.]—Starkey one George Hall, a low, chunky negro came home and proceeded to discuss domestic economy with his wife, a cream colored coon of Amazonian stature. As unreasonably as it may seem, from words they come to blows, and the little man banged the tall woman around in a lively manner, finally drawing a pistol and threatening to shoot the top of her wooly head off. Naturally she objected to having her kinky "lungs" spoiled, and proceeded to secure a policeman. Oliver Jeff Johnson was found, and in the early evening he sought Hall in his native haunts. He had not long to linger, for Hall came home and went into the house of a neighbor in search of his wife. She was not there, and while he was discussing the question of her whereabouts with his neighbors, the officer laid his hand on his shoulder and bade him come along.

Hall started, took a few steps, and then turned around and began a lively scuffle for freedom. The officer was compelled to use his club pretty freely, and finally felled the old scoundrel to the earth, raising a bump like a goose egg, and leaving an ugly gash on his forehead. He was then conducted to the barracks and locked up.

This morning in court he tried his best to get his spouse to help him out, but she was obdurate, and in ten of one hundred dollars fine, William will drag a ball and chain for sixty days on the public streets.

A Big Turnout.

MACON, June 7.—[Special.]—Judge Patterson brought in three hundred and fifty dollars fine into the city treasury after a two and a half hours' session today. Quite a number of penitents occupied the mourner's bench. Four or five diminutive darkys were in the crowd, and their pleadings were sometimes quite dramatic. The room was filled to suffocation with interested spectators, and the trial was a remarkable June day in police court circles.

For Larceny.

MACON, June 7.—[Special.]—Jim Milton, a buff colored nig from Jacksonville, accepted the invitation of a friend of his chum, and he and the chum, Dan Mason, went down to the friend's house and spent the night. They went there, and when Dan got up next morning, he found $450 missing from his pocket. Jim was arrested at his insistance, but was held for safe keeping until Dan could swear out a warrant for him for simple larceny.

United States Court.

MACON, June 7.—[Special.]—United States court for the Macon division of the western circuit, presided over by the chief presiding marshal Wade and Locks were in session. The grand jury was sworn in, and then Judge Speer delivered his charge, which was a most exhaustive address on the questions baring directly and indirectly on the issues at stake. It will be safe to say that no finer speech was ever delivered in Macon court room, above or below, than that delivered by a Macon audience. Those present forgot how the time was slipping away, so deeply engrossed were they in listening to this calm, clear and comprehensive resume of the relations existing between the government and the people.

The assignment of cases was then taken up, and decided the balance of the time till adjournment.

Judge Speer does not believe in the "jag and bottle" business. He says that the collection of revenue is the business of the marshals and deputies that this is not a police court, and that the jury is not in search of petty misdemeanors, but after a suffrage of the revenue laws.

The grand jury is as follows: T. C. Burke, foreman, W. R. Bassey, Bill Williams, James Barfield, Ed Ruth, Ed Terry, J. T. Rogers, Ephraim Evans, G. W. Jordan, D. W. Bland, W. H. Jones, A. Y. Adams, George Bardick, Felix Watts, Rich Hubbard, J. T. Steppen, J. E. Gillian and Sam Weiselschbaum.

About forty cases are on docket, six of which are felonies, nineteen criminal cases, one assign for the district court, the most important of which are Will B. Jackson, of Americus; Randolph Dominick, of Macon, and John T. McLane, of Putnam.

Twelve go to the circuit court docket and to the grand jury. The court will remain in session about a month.

A New Organization.

MACON, June 7.—[Special.]—At a meeting of the East Tennessee and Central railroad conductors at the Brown house yesterday the organization of Macon Division No. 12, Order of Railway Conductors was perfected. The following officers were elected: J. T. Johnson, Richmond, Va., chief conductor; A. N. Kendrick, Macon, assistant chief conductor; R. E. Reed, Macon, secretary and treasurer; C. J. Joyner, Macon, senior conductor; James Richardson, Macon, junior conductor; W. M. Taylor, Richmond, inside guard. A banquet was then served, at which the following officers were present: J. C. Dewart and C. W. Thompson, Richmond; J. H. Lalimer, S. L. Vandevere, F. W. Thompson, A. J. Slatton, W. J. Adams, J. Suggs and Charles Morris, Atlanta; D. D. Curran, R. H. Hudson, R. G. McFarland, C. Herring, J. R. Adams and R. J. McElroy, Montgomery.

Commencement Exercises.

MACON, June 7.—[Special.]—Commencement exercises begin at Wesleyan next week.

and at Mt. de Sales on the 23d of June. The girls will be out in all their beauty, and the usual interesting exercises inaugurated.

Spicy Specials.

MACON, June 7.—[Special.]—Ophelia McGaugh and Mamie Savage occupied rooms together in Madison street, and kept open house, and they had a row about it. Judge Freeman issued a warrant for Mamie's arrest today.

Miss Holly H. Clark, the invalid daughter of Dr. Clark, of H. C. Clark, the surgeon, has her home on Madison street. Unless a change for the better occurs soon, she can hardly withstand the shock.

The sixteen year old son of N. M. Hawkins, cemetery treasurer, is very ill at his father's home. He is in an extremely critical condition today.

Work is on the upper end of Bridge street, East Macon, has been begun at last. The pools and puddles that have beset the wayfarer must disappear.

Messrs. Wash, Desser, Nat. Winship and others, returned from Lumpkin City today. They say that the weather is very bad, and that the river is high. One fellow so much enjoyed the river, that he has not yet been able to get his shirt off, though it is pinned to him.

Orange and College streets show many signs of progress, and several improvements are being made.

The General Council Meets in Regular Session
Adopt the Ordinance Prohibiting Pool Selling

An Ordinance Relative to Liquor Selling
When the Saloons Close, Etc.

Baseball pools and prohibition formed the leading features of the session of the general council yesterday afternoon.

While working under the head of reports of committees, Mr. Hutchinson, chairman of the special committee, having the ordinances prohibiting baseball pool rooms, arose and said:

"The special committee having the subject in hand recommend that the original ordinance not be adopted because the law prohibiting the sale of liquor was a state enactment, and that the grand jury and the state courts were the place for them.

Mr. Mitchell thought the ordinance a wise one.

Mr. Stockell concurred with Mr. Cooper.

Mr. Kinney thought the ordinance eminently proper.

A LIVELY DISCUSSION ENFOLLS.
The report was signed by Mr. Hutchinson,
Mr. Beale, Mr. Kenyon, Mayor Hillier and
City Attorney Goodwin, the entire committee.

"That is about what I expected," said Mr.
Angier when the chairman of the committee
sat down, "and I want to say that I think it is a shame to legislate in that manner. Now if it is wrong to buy base ball pools can it be any less wrong to buy cotton and grain farms?"

"He did not receive the information.

Mr. Garrett thought the ordinance would postpone the trial too far to bring about any good.

Mr. Stockell offered as a substitute a resolution requesting the board of police commissioners
to instruct the police department to enforce the prohibition law.

Mr. Rice—That an electric light be placed on the lot.

Mr. Stockell then moved that the city code be revised by the addition of a clause to the effect that the pools be required to have electric lights.

Mr. Beale—That a committee composed of the committees on finance and streets be appointed to consider the matter.

Mr. Stockell offered as a substitute a resolution
requesting the board of police commissioners
to instruct the police department to enforce the prohibition law.

A MOTION TO TABLE.
Mr. Beale then moved to lay Mr. Stockell's motion aside, and says it is a good one. The city code is to be revised.

be required to have electric lights.

To the Macon Telegraph—"Please quit 'claiming' Screen county. Its done gone again you!"

The last story about General Gordon is that the scar on his face was cut by a swinging limb. It's a cold day when they don't start a new slander.

South Georgia is doing as well as could be expected. Gordon has carried Dooley, Lee, Mitchell and Screen in that section, while Bacon has carried only Clinch and Liberty since Gordon came out. And yet the Gordon counties in south Georgia have hardly started.

Atlanta will not put a ticket in a dog's mouth today for it to Macon's candidate as Macon did for Atlanta in the capitol race. It will be remembered that in that race an Atlanta ticket was put in the mouth of a Newfoundland dog and the dog was made to vote it.

Let every Gordon man study his ticket closely. Mixed tickets will be run all day. The following is the Gordon ticket for delegates. Cut this out and vote it, or compare it with the ticket that you do vote. The Bacon men are working hard and will take advantage of every trick:

Today's Primary.

Fulton county is overwhelmingly for Gordon. If every democratic vote in the county were polled, it would show a majority for him of ten to one.

The only difficulty is in the over-confidence of Gordon's friends. Their very strength in the county has a tendency to lull them into false security. The Bacon men are actively at work, and they are voting every man that can possibly be induced to oppose Gordon. One thing is certain: every Bacon man in Fulton county and every anti-Gordon vote in the county will be polled.

It is important, therefore, that Gordon's friends should turn out in full force and make his victory in this county such as it ought to be and can be. The Bacon men openly admit that they have no hope of carrying the county. They take pains to impress this on the Gordon men. No Gordon man should be deceived by any such admission. While the Bacon men are talking this way they are straining every nerve and are relying on their only hope, which is to catch the Gordon men asleep.

Dr. Felton's Letter.

We print this morning a letter from Dr. Felton, in which he reiterates his charges against General Gordon.

These charges fall as harmless from the shining and splendid character of General Gordon, as did the charges made by Dr. Felton against the late Senator Hill, from the stainless integrity of that lamented traitor.

The essence of Dr. Felton's attack is that General Gordon, while a senator, was bribed by Huntington, and that he conspired with Stanley Mathews and others to sell the presidency that Tilden had won. These things Dr. Felton does not charge. He publishes statements, however, that leave no other inference.

The assumption that John B. Gordon, while holding a senator's commission from the people of Georgia, took gold as a bribe from Huntington, or any other man, is violent to the point of absurdity. There is not, in our opinion, one single man in Georgia who could bring himself to believe such a monstrous charge. General Gordon lived, as a senator, in poverty. He resigned from the senate because he was too poor to stay there. Can any man doubt that with General Gordon's position as a leader in the senate, he could have become a millionaire if he had been corrupt enough to lend his influence to the railroad kings who were interested in legislation. General Gordon was poor because he was incorrigible; and it was because he was too poor to hold his place in the senate that he resigned. He handed back to the people, stainless and spotless, the high commission they had given him, and left the senate much poorer than he had entered it. The charge of corruption does not lie against such a man and such a record as this.

The charge that General Gordon conspired to sell the presidency is really not worthy of serious reference. This, with the other charges that Dr. Felton is pleased to revamp, we leave to answer themselves.

Dr. Felton is mistaken in charging that we first brought Mr. Hill into this discussion. The letters of "Plain Talk" some weeks ago quoted from a presumably private letter of Mr. Hill as to his opinion of General Gordon, as Dr. Felton now quotes from a presumably private letter of Mr. Stephens. We alluded to Dr. Felton's abuse of Mr. Hill to show that he was ac-costumed to argue beyond the just meaning of his facts.

In the letter we quoted from he was attacking Senator Hill on his record as senator. And he says in writing that he was so impressed with what he saw of Mr. Hill that he turned away from the room in which Senator Hill was speaking "in shame and disgust," and that if any one had asked him if he was from the same state as Mr. Hill he "would have denied it." We reprint what we said on this subject in our editorial of Sunday:

Among other things, after arguing in detail that Mr. Hill had acted corruptly as a senator, Dr. Felton says that he approached a door while Senator Hill was speaking. Of his feelings while listening to the speech he says:

"I remembered also that some man approached Peter when his Master was on trial and said to him: 'Thou also art a Galilean: thy speech betrays thee.' Iest I should be asked, what do you mean by that? I mean that any man who has asked him if he was from the same state as Mr. Hill would have denied it."

But Prince Napoleon is not the only Bonaparte directly in the way of the republic. His two sons, Victor and Louis, are handsome, manly youths, and will soon be able to play and act for themselves.

These are the persons who will be affected by the action of the French government. There are other princes and princelings, offshoots of the Bourbons and Bonapartes, but they are not just at present considered of much importance. If there is any vitality in the pretensions of these throne-hunters, exile will fan it into a flame instant of quenching it.

Gordon and Organized Democracy.

The rally of the Gordon men of Atlanta last night at the court house was a thoroughly representative assemblage, and the earnestness and enthusiasm of the crowd was an index of the sentiment of the county. The address of Dr. Miller was one of the most forcible of the campaign, and was received with intense interest by the audience. It was a masterly effort, and its sound reasoning, logical argument, and eloquent rendition, logical eager attention and forced earnest conviction. Dr. Miller has been invited to speak in several counties and will probably do so at an early date. His speech is one which would be heartily received in any county in Georgia.

This is not the worst of Dr. Felton's abuse of Senator Hill. He calls him "a deliberate falsifier of the truth." He says of Mr. Hill, "a gentle man and as frank as ever lived. 'You can measure his malice by his hypocrisy.' He says of one of his speeches: 'It is a fact that Mr. Hill is not the worst of Dr. Felton's abuse of Senator Hill. He calls him 'a deliberate falsifier of the truth.' He says of Mr. Hill, 'a gentle man and as frank as ever lived. 'You can measure his malice by his hypocrisy.'
